LSE has been at the forefront in developing high-level executive education for a global audience; in March 2019 it continued this great tradition by launching a week-long programme for senior officials from ASEAN. We are delighted to announce that in September 2024 we will, once again, be working together with SRW&Co. to deliver yet another high-level programme, which will bring together LSE's expertise and strategic thinking to examine the challenges facing ASEAN - an economically diverse and dynamic part of the world where China's rise and America's apparent retreat from globalism is posing many new questions to which policy-makers urgently require no-nonsense answers.

This customised executive education programme creates a high-impact platform for contemporary leaders from the public and private sectors to exchange knowledge and experience with select LSE faculty, high-calibre guest speakers, and senior expert practitioners. The opportunity to learn about, analyse, and discuss best international practices in leadership, entrepreneurship and innovation across various sectors will be truly unique.

True to the LSE's founding mission we aim to explore and understand the 'causes of things' and in particular how globalisation works, how it impacts on South East Asia in particular, why it is now being questioned in many parts of the world today, and how the big shifts now taking place in the international system will shape the region going forward. Interaction and engagement in an intellectually rich discussion inside and outside the classroom are key to this programme, and together with substantial networking opportunities will form part of your journey to help advance you as leaders in the 21st century.

From the Interim President and Vice Chancellor of the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE)

We are delighted that the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE) will host its second edition of the ASEAN Global Leadership Programme, in association with SRW&Co., in September 2024.

LSE is a truly global institution which prides itself not only on world-class research and teaching but also the impact of that work around the world for different stakeholders in the public and private sectors, for which this programme is a great example. LSE is a global hub for leaders, from our young students to senior executives, and helps build the intellectual and strategic problem-solving abilities that make a difference in the world.

For LSE, the ASEAN region has great significance and so we are delighted to welcome the ASEAN Global Leadership Programme to LSE under the outstanding academic guidance of Professor Saul Estrin and Professor Michael Cox.

Daniel Wong

Chairman & Partner, SRW&Co.

From the Chairman & Partner of SRW&Co.

SRW&Co. is very pleased to announce the launching of the second edition of our ASEAN Global Leadership Program (AGLP) in collaboration with LSE in the fall of 2024. The decision to conduct the second edition is based on the very positive feedback from the participants who attended our first edition of AGLP in the spring of 2019. The 2024 fall edition of our AGLP with LSE will be the 25th edition of our AGLP since its inception in 2009.

The 5-day custom designed AGLP will provide value for leaders from the private and public sectors in the ASEAN countries by drawing on LSE's global expertise in teaching and research in designing and delivering a world class leadership development programme.

The AGLP will provide a platform for the exchange of knowledge and experiences between the LSE faculty and the participants and among the participants themselves in addressing the challenges and opportunities faced by the leaders in the region.

We had drawn on the experiences and insights from the past editions of our AGLP in working very closely with the Programme Academic Directors, Professor Michael Cox and Professor Saul Estrin in designing a world class executive education programme. The 5-day programme is premised on a thoughtful design of agenda and curriculum comprising classroom lectures, panel discussion, company site visits and a business networking event. The theme of the programme is aptly entitled: "After Globalisation? Leading the World Economy in an Age of Turbulence".

We look forward to welcoming another cohort of leaders from the ASEAN countries to our AGLP LSE edition in the fall of 2024.

ASEAN GLOBAL LEADERSHIP PROGRAM

About ASEAN Global Leadership Program

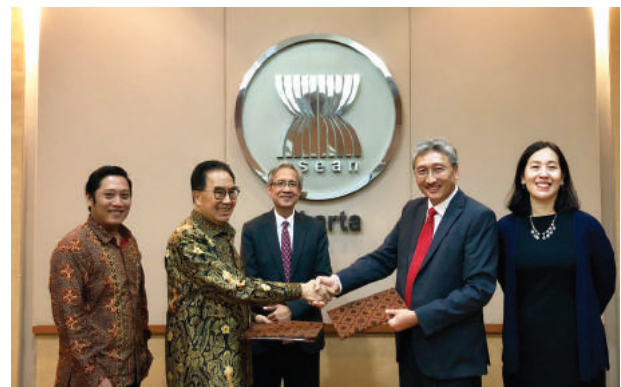

AGLP Editions 2009 - 2023

The ASEAN Global Leadership Program is a custom designed 5-day programme focusing on the 4 key themes of Globalisation, Entrepreneurship, Innovation, and Leadership.

The first AGLP was launched in 2009 in collaboration with the University of Cambridge Judge Business School in the UK, followed by the Cheung Kong Graduate of Business in China, the UC Berkeley Haas School of Business in the USA, the London Business School in the UK, the New York University Stern School of Business in the USA, the London School of Economics and Political Science in the UK, IESE Business School in Spain and the University of Chicago Booth School of Business in the USA.

The AGLP provides a learning platform for the participants to address the challenges and opportunities in the ASEAN Economic Community context, while promoting business networking for the participants from Southeast Asia countries.

The AGLP is aimed at those senior executives working in both the public sector and the private sector across industries in the Southeast Asia region who have responsibilities for strategic leadership and for improving their company's performance. To date, the AGLP Alumni comprise some 500 top executives at the C-suite and Board level in the corporate sector, including policy makers and regulators from the public sector.

In support of the mission of executive education in the Southeast Asia region, SRW&Co. launched the AGLP Scholarship as a CSR initiative in collaboration with the ASEAN Business Advisory Council in 2016. The annual ASEAN Business Awards are conferred by the ASEAN Business Advisory Council to recognize outstanding ASEAN enterprises in various categories, with a spotlight on the promising ASEAN small and medium sized enterprises (SMEs) that have the potential of becoming global economic players. The AGLP Scholarship is granted to the selected ASEAN Business Awards Winners to attend the AGLP in a global business school.

This strategic partnership with the ASEAN Business Advisory Council across the 10-member ASEAN countries is a firm endorsement of the AGLP as a signature leadership development programme for the leaders in the ASEAN countries.

AGLP LSE 2024 Programme Information

■ The City of London

London needs no introduction. With a population of over 8 million and more than 300 languages spoken, the capital is the largest and most global city in Europe. A 21st century metropolis with history stretching back to the Roman Empire, London has become a contemporary economic, political, and cultural leader. Over 40 higher education institutions are based in the capital, which makes London the largest concentration of research and academic teaching in Europe. Furthermore, the city is considered the world's biggest financial centre and most popular investment destination. With six international airports and the Eurostar, the capital is also a global travel hub and the world's most-visited city. LSE and London share far more than the name: LSE's relationship with the capital is intrinsic. Like London, LSE is diverse, open to the world, vibrant and fully engaged in the conversations that truly matter. Being at the very heart of things in central London, both intellectually and physically, the London and LSE experience is unashamedly urban and metropolitan with a truly global reach.

■ LSE London Campus

The teaching venue is a critical part of shaping learning at LSE. Space shapes the way the rest of our senses engage in the visual and verbal interactions taking place in LSE teaching venues and among the members of the LSE community. Located on LSE campus in central London, our executive education teaching spaces are both versatile and interesting with a calm relaxed ambiance. Furthermore, the central London location in the City of Westminster offers an endless array of cultural and historic experiences and an unparalleled environment to visit, study and engage with high-calibre faculty and the wider LSE community. As a global centre for economics, politics and culture, our location places our students and staff on the doorstep of the latest developments in business, policy-making and cultural matters worldwide. The physical spaces are supplemented, furthermore, with a virtual learning environment available exclusively online to our executive education participants, which rounds up the overall LSE education experience with an increased learning engagement and enhanced learning outcomes.

■ Travel & Accommodation

Participants will be responsible for the cost of travel, accommodation, and visa. We will recommend hotels within walking distance to LSE London campus. We suggest all participants make hotel reservations early as possible to secure rooms during the programme period.

■ Who should attend?

This programme is aimed at those senior executives who have responsibilities for strategic leadership and improving their company's performance. Particularly, this programme is very relevant to CEO, members of Boards of Directors, members of Boards of Commissioners, and senior executives who are about to assume top management positions. The programme is applicable for executives working in both the public sector and the private sector across industries.

Registration

Applications are accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. Early registration is recommended.

AGLP LSE 2024 Programme Agenda & Synopsis

DAY 1 Monday, 02nd September 2024 | Strategic Scenarios in a World Of Constant Change

Opening Ceremony & Programme Overview

Morning Session

Towards an Asian or ASEAN Century?

Prof. Emeritus Michael Cox, Founding Director LSE IDEAS | Prof. Emeritus Saul Estrin, Dept. of Management, LSE

The first part of the day will be led by the two academic directors together who will address the following questions:

- In 2008 former LSE Professor Danny Quah predicted the centre of the world in the 21st century would move away from the Transatlantic area Eastwards towards Asia. Has he been proven right?
- What role has ASEAN played in helping establish the 'Asian Century' since coming into being in 1967?
- How has the war in Ukraine impacted on Asia and the rest of the world economy?

Scenarios for the World Economy in an Age of Geopolitical Tensions

Prof. Jeffrey M. Chwieroth, Dept. of International Relations, LSE

This session will explore the significant trends shaping the new global economy in an age of geopolitical tensions, examining scenarios for growth and investment, the quest for high quality human capital, technological transformations and their impact for business and the world of banking and finance.

Afternoon Session

The 21st Century Global Economy and the New Asian Middle Class

Prof. Linda Yueh, LSE IDEAS

Depending upon the definition adopted, the middle class in Asia constitutes anywhere from 500 million to one billion or more people and accounts for more than $3 trillion in annual expenditures. The rise of the Asian middle class has already hugely expanded markets for consumer goods in recent years. This session will focus on the emerging Asian middle class and will examine this demographic shift within the bigger picture of the changes in the world economy and the rise of China. It will explore whether the rise of the middle class mirrors the shift to a multi-polar world and Asia's emergence to dominate middle income countries.

Roundtable on the BRICS

Prof. Emeritus Michael Cox, Founding Director LSE IDEAS | Prof. Emeritus Saul Estrin, Dept. of Management, LSE | Prof. Linda Yueh, LSE IDEAS

The term BRICs was originally coined back in 2001 to designate four big growth economies: Brazil, Russia, India, and China. After the 2008 crisis it assumed a greater political role which has grown ever since under the urging of China and Russia. This session will explore how the BRICs moved from being an acronym to becoming a serious player in international relations; how China and Russia have viewed the role of the BRICs over time; and the implications of the increasing conflicts, including in trade, between the US and China. It will also examine the role of the BRICS in the Russia-Ukraine war, including on Asia and especially China. Finally, it will explore the rise of other blocks, for example in the Middle East, and the effects on trade and finance in the ASEAN region.

DAY 2 Tuesday, 03rd September 2024 | Entrepreneurship, Innovation and Strategy in the Age of Change

Morning Session

Business Strategy: Drivers of Performance for Public and Private Sector Entities

Prof. Emeritus Saul Estrin, Dept. of Management, LSE

The shape of organisational structure in modern business is changing, with traditional routes to productivity gains no longer in place. Global reach, adaptability, niche knowledge and flexibility on all levels of the supply chain are required to successfully compete in an increasingly global marketplace. This in turn is changing management practices and increasing the reliance upon valuable data-driven techniques and strategic decision making. In this session, Professor Estrin will analyse the circumstances and specific challenges that are redefining the drivers of performance for public and private sector entities. Using a case study approach, the commonalities, parallels and distinguishing features will be explored and analysed.

Successful Entrepreneurship within Organisations

Prof. Emeritus Saul Estrin, Dept. of Management, LSE | Guest Speaker – Successful Entrepreneur

This session focuses on building an essential knowledge of organisational behaviour, such as leadership, teams, and motivation, to provide the managerial skills essential for launching and leading successful entrepreneurial ventures within organisations. The session will consider entrepreneurship potential in different-sized enterprises with a focus on medium and larger entities as well as multinational-organisations and SOEs. There will also be a discussion of the rise of unicorns, including in Indonesia.

Afternoon Session

Successful SOEs: Challenges and Best Practices

Dr. Mislav Radic, Bocconi University

State-owned enterprises (SOEs) constitute around 10% of global GDP, yet often remain unexplored in traditional MBA programmes and management research. In contrast to predictions that privatisation programmes will lead to a global demise of SOEs, many SOEs have continued to thrive, serving as the backbone of key strategic industries. Indeed, countering some inherent inefficiencies associated with state ownership, successful SOEs have reinvented themselves by developing novel “hybrid” governance structures, strategies, and business models. In this session, Dr Radic will analyse and provide an overview of the circumstances, specific challenges, and best practices that enable the success of SOEs in the 21st century. Using a case study approach, and drawing upon his own research, Dr Radic will provide delegates with the most recent frameworks and actionable insights they can utilize and apply in their work.

Visit to Great British Railways

Great British Railways (GBR) is a proposed state-owned public body that will oversee rail transport in Great Britain except for Transport for London, Merseytravel, light rail and tram services. It will assume most rail functions of the Department for Transport (DfT) and the Rail Delivery Group, including procuring services and setting fares.

DAY 3 Wednesday, 04th September 2024 | The Business Outlook for ASEAN in a New World Order

Morning Session

New Cold War or The Clash of the Titans?

Prof. Emeritus Michael Cox, Founding Director LSE IDEAS

The session will analyse the current US-China relationship and how it has evolved from one of cooperation to one of conflict and hostility. First Trump and now Biden have identified China as America's number 1 challenge. Professor Cox will discuss these new situations, trying to answer questions such as: What will this mean for relations between Beijing and Washington? What does it mean for the rest of Asia and ASEAN? Can 'guard rails' be put around the conflict?

China Goes Global: Xi and the World

Prof. Emeritus Michael Cox, Founding Director LSE IDEAS

Understanding the sources of the China-US competition is of course critically important. But explaining how modern China under Xi views the wider world is just as important. What are the sources of his world view? What does he mean when he talks of China's great rejuvenation? And how has Beijing under his leadership tried to fashion a grand strategy to realise its longer-term ambitions?

Afternoon Session

Panel Discussion UK – What does business in ASEAN Future look like?

Panel of senior business leaders led by Dr Jürgen Haacke, Associate Professor, Department of International Relations.

DAY 4 Thursday, 05th September 2024 | Climate Change and The Future of Work

Morning Session

Climate Change: The Global Picture

Prof. Robert Falkner, Dept of International Relations, LSE

Climate change is one of the most intractable environmental problems the world faces today. In this session, Professor Robert Falkner will briefly analyse the current global situation, providing an overview of the economics and governance of climate change, and the risks and opportunities they present for a range of organisations. He will also consider in particular the impact of climate change in the ASEAN region and likely policies going forward.

Climate Change: The Future of Business in a New Environmental Scenario

Prof. Robert Falkner, Dept of International Relations, LSE

This session will examine the varied challenges and opportunities that businesses face today and will face in the future taking into account this new environmental scenario. Once we have identified the risks that climate change poses to business, Professor Falkner will analyse how companies can adapt to this new reality.

Afternoon Session

Digital Transformation: Challenges and opportunities for businesses in the 21st century

Dr. Antti Lyyra, Dept. of Management, LSE

This session will examine scenarios for growth, the quest for high quality human capital, technological transformations and their impact for business. Dr Lyyra will explore the future challenges and opportunities of business innovation and human productivity in an age of digitalization and automation. Special attention will be paid to state-of-the-art technologies (i.e., artificial intelligence, robotics, neural networks, etc.) and how they may impact the world economy in general, and ASEAN economies in particular.

The Future of Work

Dr. Antti Lyyra, Dept. of Management, LSE

This session will look at how the nature of work is changing, drawing on cutting edge research to analyse how digitalization and automation will impact human productivity and innovation. Dr Lyyra will discuss the impacts of technology in different industries and highlight those industries which may be more affected by technological changes. The session will cover the opportunities and threats in tomorrow's dynamic business landscape.

Gala Dinner with Keynote Speaker | Houses of Parliament

Speaker: Baroness Falkner

DAY 5 Friday, 06th September 2024 | Leadership Styles and Effectiveness

Morning Session

The Agile Leader

Prof. Connon Locke, Department of Management, LSE

A common misconception is that there is an 'ideal' style of leadership. In fact, 100 years of leadership research shows us that the most effective leaders are ones who can adapt their behaviour to fit the needs of the situation. However, there are a huge number of leadership styles and situations one could choose from, making this type of agility easier said than done. In this session, Professor Connon Locke will introduce the concept of leadership agility and will provide an overview of leadership research, the key lessons we have learnt, and the difference between leadership and management. She will introduce participants to the six core styles of leadership, including when and how to use them effectively.

Scenarios and Self-reflection

Prof. Connon Locke, Department of Management, LSE

The second session will apply the learnings from the first session by presenting participants with five commonly encountered scenarios for which they will be asked to choose the best leadership style. The group will discuss the pros and cons of the various options. Participants will engage in self-reflection on their own leadership style and how they can become more agile. The session concludes with tips for becoming a more effective leader.

Afternoon Session

Concluding Session: Learning Reflections and Action Planning

Prof. Emeritus Michael Cox, Founding Director LSE IDEAS | Prof. Emeritus Saul Estrin, Dept. of Management, LSE

Closing Ceremony and Reception

Programme Academic Directors & Senior LSE Representative

Prof. Emeritus Michael Cox | Founding Director LSE IDEAS

Professor Michael Cox is Director of LSE IDEAS and Emeritus Professor of International Relations at LSE. He helped establish the Cold War Studies Centre in 2004 and expand it into IDEAS, a foreign policy centre based at the LSE which aims to bring the academic and policy works together. In a 2014 international survey, IDEAS was ranked 2nd in the world amongst the best university affiliated Think Tanks. Professor Cox has held several senior professional positions in the field of international relations including Chair of the European Consortium of Political Research, Transatlantic Fellow at the Royal United Services Institute London, and Senior Fellow at the Nobel Institute in Oslo amongst others. He is now general editor of two successful book series: Palgrave's Rethinking World Politics and Routledge's Cold War History. Professor Cox is a well-known speaker on global affairs and has lectured in the United States, Australia, Asia, and in the EU.

Professor Saul Estrin is a Professor of Management and founding Head of Department. He was formerly Adecco Professor of Business and Society at London Business School where he was the Research Director of the Centre for New and Emerging Markets and Director of the CIS Middle Europe Centre. Saul was also Deputy Dean (Faculty and Research) at London Business School for six years as well as briefly Acting Dean and a School governor for eight years.

Professor Estrin's main areas of research are emerging markets, with a particular focus on entrepreneurship and international business issues. He has published more than one hundred papers in scholarly journals as well as numerous chapters and reports. Professor Estrin also has considerable practitioner experience. He was for twelve years a non-executive director of Barings Emerging Markets and was also a member of the Academic Panel of the postal regulator, Postcomm.

Prof. Jeffrey M. Chwieroth | Dept. of International Relations, LSE

Professor Jeffrey Chwieroth is currently a Professor of International Political Economy at the Department of International Relations at the London School of Economics and Political Science. At the LSE he also serves as the Director of the MSc. in International Political Economy. Previously, Jeffrey was a Visiting Professor in the Department of Political Science at the Institute for Advanced Studies in Vienna (Institut für Höhere Studien), a Visiting Scholar in the Research Department of the International Monetary Fund, Assistant Professor in the Department of Political Science at Syracuse University, and a Jean Monnet Postdoctoral Fellow in the Robert Schuman Centre for Advanced Studies at the European University Institute.

Prof. Linda Yueh | LSE IDEAS

Professor Linda Yueh CBE is Fellow in Economics, St Edmund Hall, University of Oxford and Adjunct Professor of Economics, London Business School. She was Visiting Professor at LSE IDEAS and Chair of the LSE Economic Diplomacy Commission. She also serves on the Advisory Board of LSE IDEAS and on the Policy Committee of the Centre for Economic Performance at LSE. She was an Adviser to the UK

Board of Trade and a member of the Independent Review Panel on Ring-fencing and Proprietary Trading of the UK Government. Professor Yueh is the Editor of the Routledge Series on Economic Growth and Development and the author of numerous books, including China's Growth: The Making of an Economic Superpower, The Great Economists: How Their Ideas Can Help Us Today, and The Great Crashes: Lessons from Global Meltdowns and How to Prevent Them.

Dr. Mislav Radic | Bocconi University

Dr. Mislav Radic is an Assistant Professor of Strategy and Public Policy at Bocconi University (Milan). His research and teaching lie at the intersection between strategic management and public policy, analysing the changing boundaries between public and private organization. Studying phenomena like the privatization of the Post Office, restructuring of the railway sector and public sponsorship of firm, led him to explore concepts such as organizational identity, resilience, and corporate social responsibility. His research was published in some of the leading academic journals in the field of management and is frequently featured in prominent media outlets such as the Financial Times, the Guardian, and the BBC. He was the Principal Investigator on the UKRI funded project "Rethinking Privatisations: Exploring Hybrid Organising in the Railway Sector" and is a collaborator on the British Academy funded project "The Great Post Office Scandal". In addition to his research, he acts as a policy and strategy advisor for several governments, private and public sector organizations, and serves as an agenda contributor to the World Economic Forum and Chatham House.

Dr. Jürgen Haacke | Associate Professor, Department of International Relations

Dr. Jürgen Haacke is Associate Professor in International Relations at the London School of Economics and Political Science. He is also an Associate Fellow at the Royal United Services Institute. From August 2016 until July 2018, he was the Director of the LSE Saw Swee Hock Southeast Asia Centre. Previously he was also a Visiting Scholar at the East-West Center, Honolulu, and a Visiting Fellow at ISEAS-Yusof Ishak

Institute. His publications include works on ASEAN's diplomatic and security culture, and contributions to the literature on the foreign policies and security strategies of Southeast Asian states. At LSE, Jürgen currently teaches courses on strategy, as well as on the politics, security, and international relations of Southeast Asia in the context of the growing competition and strategic rivalry among the major powers.

Prof. Robert Falkner | Dept of International Relations, LSE

Prof. Falkner is Professor of International Relations at the LSE and serves as the Academic Dean of the TRIUM Global Executive MBA programme, an alliance between HEC Paris, NYU Stern School of Business and LSE. Until 2022, he was the Research Director of the LSE's Grantham Research Institute on Climate Change and the Environment. He received a double degree in politics and economics from Ludwig-Maximilians-University in Munich and a doctorate in international relations from the University of Oxford (Nuffield College). Before joining LSE, he held academic positions at the universities of Oxford, Kent and Essex. He was a visiting scholar at Harvard University and Simone Veil Fellow at Ludwig-Maximilians-University Munich, and is currently a Distinguished Fellow of the Munk School of Global Affairs and Public Policy at the University of Toronto. Robert has published widely on issues relating to international political economy, global environmental politics and global business, including Great Powers, Climate Change and Global Environmental Responsibilities (co-edited with Barry Buzan, Oxford University Press, 2022), Environmentalism and Global International Society (Cambridge University Press, 2021), The Handbook of Global Climate and Environment Policy (Wiley-Blackwell, 2016) and Business Power and Conflict in International Environmental Politics (Palgrave Macmillan, 2008).

Dr. Antti Lyyra | Department of Management, LSE

Dr. Antti Lyyra is a Fellow in the Department of Management at the London School of Economics. His research and teaching focus on the innovation and application of artificial intelligence and robotics technologies. He is a co-designer and lecturer for the Management of Artificial Intelligence module in the MSc Programme in Information Systems and Digital Innovation. He holds a PhD from the London School of Economics and has professional experience in consulting, large-scale information system implementations, and strategy and operations research in the self-driving vehicle industry.

Prof. Connon Chou Locke | Department of Management, LSE

Professor Connon Locke joined the London School of Economics (LSE) in 2008 where she teaches Leadership, Organizational Behaviour, and Negotiation and Decision Making. Connon has over 30 years' experience as an educator, coach, and consultant working in Europe, Asia Pacific, North America, and Australia. Prior to entering academia, she served as Regional Training and Development Manager for the Boston Consulting Group where she was responsible for the learning and development of consulting staff in 10 offices across Asia Pacific. Connon holds a Ph.D. and M.Sc. in Business Administration (Organizational Behaviour) from the University of California, Berkeley and a B.A. in Sociology from Harvard University where she graduated with honours. Her book, Making Your Voice Heard, uses the research on power and influence to help people speak up to those who have more power than they do. <https://connonlocke.com/>
